

I had several requests for a list of my comments from the recent forum, all in one place and compressed. Josh was able to do that easily using his editing skills. Problem is, they are in reverse order, so to read them in chronological order, you have to start at the bottom and read up.

I don't think they plan to take out anyone, which is why I exist under my own name. They don't need to, do they? As for the ramping up of events, honestly I think it is in part due to my website going viral. They need to hammer in the old nails and create a lot of new events to keep people off my sites. They have to turn up the music at their circus, to try to drown out my melody. It isn't working too well, since my numbers continue to rise, but even so, I don't see any violent crackdown on the horizon. I see zero indication of a violent uprising, so it looks like they will just continue on with the blue pill and the matrix, which have worked so well for so long. Basically, they brought this on themselves with 911 and Homeland Security, and they would be facing harder times even without me. Their response to push-back against Operation Chaos was to create even more chaos, but they are beginning to see that isn't working. At some point I expect them to see some amount of reason and begin scaling back to 1990 levels. Nobody wants to live in the current world, including them. Just witness Hollywood to see the sort of blowback they are getting from their own projects. Do those rich privileged people seem happy to you? No, they have to try to have relationships in the same manufactured climate you do, which is impossible no matter who you are.

Listen not to what they say, but watch what they do.

Josh may not like me bringing this up after he sent the Biblical scholars off site, but I have a hunch the current rock under the Dome of the Rock is a decoy. My guess is the rock of Abraham is located somewhere nearby at depth, and is known only to a few. This is the only way to explain why the Jews don't seem to care much about the rock under the Dome. The whole Temple Mount makes no sense from top to bottom, so we may assume some misdirection is going on. The Temple Mount isn't the highest point in Jerusalem. If I were looking for the real rock, I would look at the highest point. Like beneath David's tomb in the Cenacle.

RT just sent me an email, and it included this info:

"According to this website's stats <https://www.similarweb.com/website/mileswmathis.com>, you have the 323rd most visited website on the topic of "arts and entertainment", rank 91,900 of all sites in the United States, and rank 299,630 in the entire world. That is just incredible, Miles. In January, 2018 there were over 1.8 billion websites in existence. That puts your website in the 99.999999997 percentile of global rank. Just thought you might like that. Now, add in the fact that you you receive absolutely no support from the mainstream, in fact you are actively campaigned against, and I think that likely bumps you up to to the top 10, because the other websites have financial support to artificially inflate their ranking. That's rather impressive, mate." I guess that is why I get so many emails about advertising on my site, none of which I respond to. Also interesting is that my site is 100% organic, with 72% direct traffic. Only 14% comes from searches, which confirms what RT said about me being suppressed by search engines. Only 6% of my traffic comes from social media, which is also very low. We can tell they are suppressing the art site more than the science site, since 27% of my traffic there comes from searches. Almost double. That isn't what you would expect, given unbiased searches. The science site ranks 6500 in science, which is also pretty good, though it doesn't compare to 323. AN-other way we know they are suppressing the art site more than the science site is that although many of my science papers have gone viral according to Google—ranking on the front page—none of the art/history/fake events papers have. Just for fun, I looked up POM's global rank: 1,471,200. My art site alone ranks five times higher, with—in a good month—about 150,000 visits a month. Too bad we can't get a combined rank of my two sites. For more fun, I looked up RationalWiki. They rank 292 in

Arts and Entertainment>Movies. Since that movie subcategory must be much smaller than the Arts and Entertainment category, I assume that means my site outranks theirs in the category Arts and Entertainment. Not bad considering that I am a single guy working out of my house, while they are foundation with a board of trustees and an operations manager. Here is the list of their board of trustees, taken from their own site: David Gerard, FuzzyCatPotato, Reverend Black Percy, Human, Spud, and Tmtoulouse. Hmm, a board of trustees made up of fake names? What could it mean? Well, check the graphic on this page, where I found those names.

https://rationalwiki.org/wiki/RationalWiki:RationalMedia\_Foundation A jackboot stomping a human face forever. Right out of 1984, isn't it? They are telling us who they are, aren't they? Also curious is that they exist just up the road, in Albuquerque. I moved to Taos in 2007 and RatWiki was founded in . . . 2007. Just a coincidence, right?

I would have thought insulators would be better at blocking EM than metals. They partially block the charge field, which is why I earlier recommended wearing leather soled shoes rather than plastic or rubber. Your body wants the photons coming up, since they keep you charged in the right amount. This charge helps you repel or process EM fields, so part of the modern problem is that the body is torpid regarding charge, preventing it from dealing with EM fields in the correct way, you see. Houses are also built wrong, since many have insulation beneath the floors. You don't want any insulators beneath the floors. You want charge rising naturally. It can do that through rock and I assume concrete, and of course wood, but it can't do that through insulation. Big cities have the same problem, since they have a lot of crap beneath the streets, including insulators. That's why you should never live downtown. ANYway, metals can work as insulators, but they have to be turned in the right direction. You want them spreading out charge laterally instead of conducting it straight through. But remember, no matter what you are using as an insulator, it is not soaking up anything, or even blocking it. It is just redirecting it. So if you are using metals as insulators, be aware that the EM radiation is still coming out the sides in the same amounts. In other words, if you are standing in front of the metal and it is positioned correctly, you will be protected, but if you move around to the side, you will still get zapped. So don't protect yourself and accidentally zap your cat, for instance.

Concerning radiation, it isn't just a matter of radiation levels or wavelengths, it is a matter of whether the body has a method of dealing with them. The newer forms, being new and unnatural, leave the body with no natural defenses. The body knows how to process and defend against sunlight (to an extent), but has no analogous ways to process or defend against focused wifi and other new forms. It may develop defenses, but who knows how long that will take. The human body is notoriously weak compared to other animals, and is weaker now than it has ever been in history. It has been weakened by purposely polluted air, water, and food, and heightened levels of unnatural radiation can only add to the toxic mix. So avoiding new radiation is a smart move, in my opinion. However, Jared is right that at the same time there is a lot of fear mongering. I don't believe that radiation from Fukushima has irradiated the entire Pacific, or that it is threatening the West Coast of the US. Yes, ocean life is being killed, but it was being killed before Fukushima, mostly from "normal" pollution. That is, pesticides, plastics, and a million other chemicals and castoffs of human lack of civilization.

Remember, I don't have a cellphone and don't live in a big city, and that is one of the reasons. I am more concerned about radiation than tracking, honestly. I really believe that is one of the reasons my brain is somewhat less fried than most people's. Since I left Austin in 2000, I have not lived in a big city. We have a few cellphone towers here, but nothing like other places. I am looking to move, and that is one of the top things I look at: no fluoride in the water, number of cellphone towers, proximity to military bases, bike lanes, etc. Oh, and I have no wifi in the house at all. My phones and computer connections are all wired. Even my mouse is wired.

YOu don't need to worry about Schumann. Worry about manufactured radiation. Schumann isn't the same as my charge field, which peaks infrared and comes straight up out of the ground. It is your friend. You need to be sure you DON'T insulate it, which is counter old school, which teaches you to insulate from the cold rising out of the ground. The last thing you want to do is block heat rising out of the ground, since that is the same as charge. That is your oil and your gasoline. You are a charge engine, just like everything else. So don't insulate subfloor and don't wear shoes around the house, except leather soled.

Thanks again everyone! Made my year.

Yeah, maybe this will get people out of the cities and back out on the farms. Read Wendell Berry's The Unsettling of AMerica. We need more people on farms and in small towns. If they make the big cities unlivable, it will help reverse the trend, which is good.

I have been painting, as I said. I do have to pay the bills, you know. But the Santa Fe article had been sitting around for a week, so I finished it off and put it up. Someone else can flesh it out.

I have never had that happen, but I am not a woman. I would rather have a pat down than be zapped with rays.

It is easy to opt out of the scanners at the airport. Every time I travel I simply request an opt out.

[In reply to Steven Oostdijk] Hey Steven, glad to have you here. Also glad there is a cache of green books somewhere. Very smart of you.

For the record, I do not agree with Annabelle's tranny evidence. I do not believe any of these people are trannies. Many of them are gay, but I see no evidence they are trannies. I see lots of strong evidence they are NOT trannies. A very small number of famous people may have an extra chromosome or be androgynes, but that is a different question. Most of the people being outed as trannies are not trannies.

I have just posted a new paper on my art site, about the Santa Fe shooting. I discovered some interesting things, as usual.

The solution is to quit reading and following this stuff. People need to boycott the media from top to bottom. Don't watch it on TV, don't subscribe to any mags or newspapers, and don't click on it online. Make the ad revenue go to zero. Use adblocker. The other solution (to Grace) is to face down your friends. Don't tee off on the first hole and move on. Tell them they are dead wrong and that you expected more of them. If people want to be stupid or corrupt, they should have to play golf with other stupid and corrupt people, not us. If these people lose all their intelligent friends, maybe they will be forced to reassess their positions. And if they don't, at least you won't have to look at their stupid faces. I bring not peace but a sword. It is time for the 5% to assert themselves and lead. If we don't do it nobody will.

Lightning Source is the only publisher currently offering cheap color printing, and I had a big falling out with them. WORst customer service ever. Predatory against their own clients. So I am waiting for some other publisher to offer the same thing, like Lulu or someplace.

If anyone is interested, I am working on a new 60" nude, so I will be busy with that for a couple more weeks. Allergy season is calming down here, so it is time to paint. A proper response to the recent article at The Cut, I think. I may send a pic of it directly to them, along with a pic of my own ass.

[To Charlie Townsend] I hope you don't need any of us here to ever answer a question or believe anything you say about anything, since you just blew it. Get lost, you are wasting your time. And say hi to Pete.

I'm sure Mark IS following this closely. I rely on it. He is following it with his entrails in his hands, awaiting the pink slip.

Trying to save this Miles creation? You are outed. Beat it.

It is strange that episodes like this seem to warn of that future, while the same people producing the episodes are installing that future as fast as possible. Obviously a diversionary tactic, to make you think someone is on the case. "The governors are aware of that danger and are protecting you from it." When just the opposite is true. Those producing the episodes aren't the good guys in the story, they are the bad guys, but the happy endings divert you away from that realization. The same could be said of 1984 and Brave New World, which we now see weren't warnings, they were brags.

[On an Outer Limits segment from about 20 years ago] Wow, that's the spookiest thing I have seen in a long time. "For the next hour, we will be in control of all you see and hear". They sell Ulysses. They mention Stanley (Ryan's overseer). They mention the number 7. The woman Cheryl is scary. The next woman is also scary, Dr. No. She runs 147 crosschecks. 16219 is more numerology. Also 197. Plus fifty Solo commercials. The stream can't teach people to read?

This is all unnecessary, Dana and Jared. Dana, just don't claim to know me when you don't.

Good one on the John Candy match, Josh! I never would have seen it without that face chop.

We're trying to shrink by one. Go away.

As "professionals" of psychological warfare, they are incompetent. That is all they have managed to prove. Not really a surprise, is it, since nearly everyone else working in the US, especially in government or military, is equally incompetent. They have a whole nest of people over there hiding behind various disguises, all ganging up on one guy, and all they can do is spray each other with friendly fire. But again, I encourage them to keep it up. I still want to buy that pony.

Typical psyop response: accuse the enemy of doing what you yourself are doing.

My life is an open book. It didn't hurt me to reveal any of that. I have admitted most of it before.

I told Josh the same thing. It looks strange to see a blank for Russia. I know I have a lot of Russian readers. Some of my papers have been translated into Russian. So it is curious that not one came to the party. I suspect they have some way to cloak their identities, making it look like they are coming from somewhere in Europe. Either that or they don't trust the security of WOrdpress.

KevinII a woman? I thought of that, too. It is possible. Man or woman, she is far overmatched.

Doesn't sound like me, sorry. I won't take anything handed to me. As we see from my papers. I am not helpless to any commands, ESPECIALLY of a physical nature. I command, I don't get commanded. Social problems, yes, due to stupid comments from everyone around me. Blind to manipulation? You have to be kidding! I am not impressed by crocodile tears, and tend to laugh when I see them. So I think you may need to do more than glance at a picture of my face to figure me out, hun. You wouldn't be the first to mistake me for someone else.

Well, I do like my sleep. I was just wondering if she was an ex-girlfriend, to be stating something with such assurance. I am not too lazy, though, since I keep myself in shape. If I were really lazy of body, I would be a fat-ass like so many other Americans my age. I'm not.

I wonder how she knows I am lazy in body?

Well, you'd be surly too if you had to put up with my inbox.

Well, just look at the nuclear structure of oxygen. It is completely polar. So of course it is going to channel charge very efficiently. Also remember that it is prematched in charge strength to water, since water is also centered by an oxygen nucleus.

Hey guys and gals, if you will remember, what got us started here was KevinII's genealogy work on me. I have now falsified that. His biggest hit on me was linking me to rich Wernes, remember? Turns out, he just made it up. See my latest update.

We just hit 2000 with my last comment, let's hear some cheering!

That's funny, I also know a man who knows more about molecular bonds than anyone else on the planet.

Also check out his [Manet's] Christ Mocked by Soldiers, which looks like an early entry in the Theosophy Project.

Holy horsefeathers, Batman! Do you know who Manet's mother's godfather was? Jean Bernadotte, who I outed as a Vasa in my paper on Napoleon. Bernadotte is the one who came out of nowhere to become King of Sweden and Norway. So not only was Manet Jewish, he was closely tied to the Vasas.

We hit 1000 comments in about three days, and 2000 in about a week.

Yes, Blake has some good ones [poems].

see my paper critics.pdf on the science site. It doesn't include numbers, but lists Google rankings for many papers.

[Gerard Manley] Hopkins is my current favorite. I used to like some of Hardy and Arnold. One or two of Seamus Heaney. Honestly, I don't read poetry anymore. I've read all the good stuff many times and there is nothing new worth reading.

You have to be more specific than that, and look at what they are listing and where. Search Miles Mathis genealogy, for instance, and the results are very different. Google lists my recent paper 2nd, but Bing doesn't list it at all. Very strange.

I have been finding strange results when searching on myself with the smaller search engines. I now recommend that all my readers avoid Bing and Duck. I know that just leaves you with Google, but for some reason Google is the only one not seriously interfering with my numbers and not uplisting my critics. If anyone wants to do more research on this, I would be glad to see it.

Funny how POM thinks "Team Mathis" is some kind of slur. I am glad to have all you people on my team. Thanks again for showing up and voicing your support.

Many advised I ignore it, but I decided not to. I think I made the right call, for many reasons. They were hoping I would either not reply, which they would read as a sign of guilt, or reply and make a mistake, which I didn't. I embarrassed them once again, which is tasty in its own right. I gained new readers, got more donations, and confirmed myself to existing readers. It has been all good.

Let Antichrist talk, he is another professional foot-shooter, come in from psychological operations. They apparently get paid to look stupid, in which case he deserves a raise.

Most of it [Nudes in history painting] is just an excuse to paint beautiful naked women, which I have no problem with, obviously.

Yes, I know about [Anders] Zorn. He is very good.

I think I just saw that picture of Sharon [Tate] and realized she wasn't dead. I then looked into it further. Somehow it spun out into a book.

[In reply to melponeme_k.] Ah, one of my Muses is here.

Thanks Wes. It matters to me that I am real.

I am not interested in another fake school shooting. You guys know what to think.

In reply to Alan Ackley.

Never heard of him, but he already sounds like a spook.

No, it's going the same speed as the other ball, since they go the same distance in the same time. They both go 4. But the ball in the curve will APPEAR to slow down in the curve, so you are right. You are not seeing wrongly. It appears to slow down because it is no longer going forward only. It is going forward and sideways at the same time. Your eye sees the distance as shorter than it is, so you think it has slowed down. The analogy is a ball in a pinball machine, having to take a complex path to move a short distance. Your eye slurs over the path and sees only the total distance, so it looks like the pinball is slowing down in the machine. But it isn't.

Maler means painter, and Mathis der Maler is a famous symphony by Hindemith. Mahler is not an artist, but a famous Modern composer, Gustav Mahler.

Also to make you think there is some important difference between a Modern painting and a forgery of that painting. Whereas, in truth, they are both equally worthless.

The project may be run to make you think these artists he is forging are important and are selling for those prices. His con confirms the bigger con, you see.

In reply to LeakyGut.

Not laughing at you. I thank you for reminding me of it.

Wolfgang allegedly spent three years in an open prison for forging $45 million worth of art? And claims, with Beltracchi, to have stolen in excess of $100 million? Doesn't add up.

Oh, I thought you felt he wasn't. My assumption of course is that he is a fake. A fake forger. Haha.

Interesting, but I agree, all these officials are controlled. The courts can just deny standing to anyone bringing a case, as they did with the Obama birth cert thing. Every voter should have had standing there, but that wasn't the finding.

I have seen the specials on several major forgers going back decades. He [Wolfgang Beltracchi] may be one of them. If you are thinking these forger stories may be controlled opposition, I agree with you, though I haven't yet figured out what the project there is. I haven't actually worked on it, so it is no surprise I have little to say. It would be a good thing for me to look at, and I may. The name Fischer is already a clue, as you intuit.

Maler has nothing to do with Mahler, who I don't like. But yes, around the time of Manet.

There is plenty of evidence to go to court on 911, and I would like to see that happen. If it were up to me, I would take them to court myself tomorrow. So I don't think we should "get past it" in that sense. Not in the "move on" sense. We were at the "move up" phase years ago, and subpoenas should have been passed out by the thousands. But that didn't happen, and Josh is right, arguing about holograms won't help us move up to that stage. What we need is a vast boycott of all major media, all useless products, all companies with any ties to the gov, all gov, and anything else that comes to mind. Just say no to everything you can say no to. Start by recycling your cellphones and going back to groundlines. I live without them easily. ANd so did you for years.

Yes, when I scanned this section on 911 my immediate reaction was that trolls from Cluesforum had finally arrived.

Peep yourself! We are always glad to have peeps. They count as much as any other comment.

Yes, and Modigliani was a great painter compared to the ones who came after him. But I'm sure the sale was fake. No one pays that much for a real work of art.

All crypto-currencies are crap. It is all another project, stay away from it!

Thanks, feel free [to translate my papers into French], but give me credit and do not edit.

I thought of that, too, and it might work. However, it won't convince people anymore than the ball bearings. Those who don't wish to believe will always come up with some lame explanation or pushed math, as they did with the ball bearings. THE friction argument against  $\pi=4$  doesn't work at all, as I show. Besides, most people can follow a ball easier than fluid, in my opinion. Fluid just confuses most people, since it brings up the question of fluid mechanics.

I have written a few sentences on it, though I don't remember where. Probably one of my papers on Nietzsche. I don't believe in eternal recurrence, and proposed that Nietzsche didn't really either. But it gives a terrible weight to each action, which is what he wanted to achieve. He was the opposite of a nihilist in that regard, you know. Rather than a life of no meaning, he wanted a life of incredible meaning, and ER gives him that, you see. Rather than eternal recurrence, I believe each of our actions is etched in time somehow, and can't be destroyed. That achieves the same thing, without the need to relive the same life over and over. The past can't be destroyed, and always remains a part of the present. So you build on your past lives and past actions. Everything you do remains eternally important, without reoccurring eternally.

I don't want to talk about aliens, since I don't know anything about them. It is like talking about gods. There may be aliens, but the gov alien projects are all misdirection. I see a lot of evidence of higher powers, but it is all pretty murky beyond that. If they wanted us to know, we would know. Whether gods or aliens, they DON'T want us to know, and I don't see it as a code we are going to crack. Life is some sort of test, and if we had the answer sheet, the test wouldn't work, would it? You know enough to know right from wrong, but you are never going to be told all the secrets. If you knew all the secrets, the fun would be gone from the game anyway. So stick with the questions that have answers and leave the other ones be. I have shown there are lot of questions that can be answered that haven't been. Those are the ones I am interested in looking at.

So, another backfired mainstream project. Just more proof there is a god(s).

He was Spanish, Joaquin Torrents Llado, now dead. It was nothing he said, since he didn't know English. It was mostly a show of his works in Austin. He painted the governor's portrait in around 1986, Mark White, no his wife. It wasn't great, but better than most of the things you see. IN conjunction with this commission, Llado brought a bunch of his best works to Austin for a show. I just happened to see one of the paintings in the window downtown as I was walking by, and I went in and was floored. At the time I thought it was like seeing a roomful of Sargents, though it wasn't quite that good. Still, very good. Llado was the best portraitist in the world then. I came back several times, until the gallery owner introduced me to Llado. I was then allowed to watch him paint a portrait of the gallery owner and his wife, from life. I only spent about a couple of hours there, but learned a lot about how it is done. I saw what paints and brushes he used, what kind of canvas, what kind of lighting, etc. I had painted a few portraits before that, but they weren't that great. In 1987 I got serious, going to Texas museums to do copywork. That also helped a lot, probably more than Llado. By 1988 I was doing some pretty decent work and was already starting to get some commissions. Thanks for asking.

You're the second one who said that here. Such feedback is helpful, thanks.

Hey dudes and dudettes, I have just posted a new short paper on my science site, if anyone is interested. No math this time, though some semi-tough spin visualizations.

One of my conference attendees lost his shorts in Bitcoin, even after I told him to get out quick. He didn't. He was sure he was smart enough to run with it. He is out now. He learned the hard way. AND no, I won't tell you his name.

That was an interesting post, thanks. Even rere's comment was to the point. Josh would have to admit he is the first Jew to blow the Dreyfus affair. . . ever? WHICH doesn't say much for Jewish openness. Of course, I am the first Gentile to blow hundreds of projects, which is also difficult to explain. It doesn't say much for the perspicuity of Gentiles, does it? So you seem to have your pick: lying manipulators or dumb-as-dirt sheep. All of us here are choosing the third route, but despite the numbers in the counter above, we are not quite a majority, are we? Doesn't really matter, as I have said before. Life isn't about majorities or political wins. It is about private wins. It is about setting yourself (and those around you) up for your next life and all the next lives down the line. In other words, your longterm relation to the Gods or Muses or whatever you wish to call them is important. Far more important than your relation to the current ruling party. Life may seem long but it is really rather short. It is just a page in a much longer book. All the wise have known that, and it doesn't take a guru to see it.

[On a story about controlling people's dreams remotely] That's fake, don't worry. Be happy. They are just trying to create fear, and cause you to edit your own dreams.

I don't want to be an idol or a guru or a cult leader, but I would appreciate it if people who claim to be fans would quit calling me an annoying narcissist. That just makes me question your judgment. I defend myself, that's all. I don't take shit. That ain't narcissism. It is called being a man, though a lot of people seem to have forgotten that. Oh, and by the way, you can't touch this.

I thought this would be tapering off by now, but it isn't. We are running about 350 posts a day for five days. Tonight will be my last night to spend a lot of time here, but I have to get back to work. I will continue to check in though less frequently for days to come.

Thanks so much for those comments on the male gaze! Great to have it from a woman. That really needed to be said and thanks for saying it.

I am already sort of crowd funded through my webcats, but it doesn't amount to much.

Bitcoin is another fraud. Sorry.

Well, Josh didn't actually put this up for me, except for the Defense above. I sort of called the party on my own bat, without consulting him. I figured he wouldn't complain about the traffic, although no one expected this kind of turnout.

I am not actually knowledgeable about computer things. I am crypto-AMish, remember?

Well, since I don't even know who you are, how could I remember? These name tags don't allow for easy identification, do they?

That's a litter box. I got the photo online, it is not my cat. Just a cute one.

I am relaxed. I have kittens on my feet. It doesn't get any more relaxed than that.

No one commented on my search yesterday, looking at the numbers they are getting at POM. A Google search on "Miles Mathis genealogy" pulls up nothing, which is strange since my reply comes up second.

I haven't done the math, but I assume the moons' orbits can be explained with the unified field in the same way. It wouldn't technically be considered a part of Bode's Law, since that only applies to the planets.

Sargent was definitely from the families, but since he had talent and didn't produce propaganda, I am not much interested in him. Maybe some of them made handsigns, maybe they didn't, but they would have made those signs no matter who was painting them, so it is difficult to blame the artist. He is not high on my list. If I am going to write negatively about artists, it is always going to be about the Moderns. There is no comparison in the levels of propaganda.

Oh no, they [POM] can't quit. I was going to buy a new pony.

Quick, somebody ask me a question NOT from the CIA playbook.

Does Weispecker have two [assholes]? That would explain a lot, such as the uh...quality... of his output.

That's not what you said before I outed you.

I have been with many women who loved my male gaze, so don't claim to speak for them.

Good riddance. She was a spook anyway, running another conjob, trying to elicit pity. She'll be back under another name, spreading disinfo.

[In reply to Allan Weisbecker] I just answered you. They {SpaceX} paid everyone to lie, like they are paying you to lie. You of all people should comprehend that. I have to say, you are some kind of glutton for punishment. When are you going to tire of playing Mim to my Siegfried? It ain't gonna change. You aren't just miraculously going to win one by sheer repetition. ANYone who wasn't being paid would have bowed out after my first responses above. He would look down at his legs—no longer there—and would have dragged himself off by his fingernails. And you did that. But then you came back, and back, and back. I guess your boss told you to get your ass back out there, legs or not, and you had no choice but to comply. But I have to tell you, this flopping around is very unseemly. Or are you actually trying to elicit pity?

[In reply to Allan Weisbecker] That's funny. Tired of the misdirection, he says. He would need an out of body experience to get away from the misdirection.

[In reply to Allan Weisbecker] I HAVE outed it [SpaceX and Musk]. Do you know how to read? You sent me an email on this remember? But I don't answer emails from people who are running a project against me and who aren't smart enough to navigate my site. But to be clear, I don't think they are sending up holograms. They are paying their audience. All those people are liars. The world is full of liars, and they work cheaply, as we see over at POM.

The social engineers are all too human, as Nietzsche would say. But I agree with you, they are monsters in some real way.

Thanks Haggis, but that wasn't really helpful. How would this get resolved? It isn't a disagreement is it? It is an attempted blackwashing. The only way to resolve it is for them to start telling the truth. And my "fans" continually saying that I MAY be a limited hangout is also not helpful. I am not a limited hangout, I am exactly what I say I am. Those who can't see that just don't have very good judgment, in my opinion. I wish they would go read someone else. I don't need support like that.

OK, I was riding my bike to the market when it dawned on me what is going on over at POM right now. I have already said I think psychological operations came in and took over at first. That first piece on my genealogy was almost good in parts: it appeared to show a lot of work and almost landed some punches. Certainly, as a matter of attempted blackwashing, it was better than what came before. Nonetheless, my response demolished it, and they clearly recognized that immediately. They went, "Crap, he did it again. We are officially in crisis mode!" To cover that this was coming out of psychological operations, they had to change direction immediately, blackwashing THEMSELVES on purpose. So they very quickly put up a series of ludicrous pieces, making it look like POM was just a nest of guys struggling with mental illness. Most readers would look at that stuff and go, "No way this is coming out of Intel. Those people are professionals and wouldn't dream of publishing such stuff. These must be private individuals, who just can't deal with Miles for personal reasons". What clued me into this was the arrival here of Weispecker, since he also appears to be feigning mental illness as part of his cover. His only hope is that people will go, "Yah, Weis seems to have some personal problems, but he does make a few good points". No one is doing that, but that was the project.

[How hard was it to fake history?] Must have not been very hard, since these are the same people now trying to blackwash me. We see how competent they are.

I don't believe in mass killers either, it is all faked. Never researched one that was real.

[In reply to Allan Weisbecker] I guess that means you lost again? But I guess you are used to that by now.

Allen, you're not even as entertaining as our anonymous resident trolls here. They have a better sense of what it takes to engage me and waste my time.

Everybody is always asking me what I think about some other author, so let me answer all those questions at once. I don't read anyone anymore. I do my own research and don't trust anyone else. 99% of the people pushing theories online are spooks, so be very careful. Research them yourselves. If they don't have a full bio posted with facts you can check, be very suspicious.

[In reply to Allan Weisbecker] I guess the difference is, I don't care who you are. Nobody does.

Didn't your pals just do my genealogy, proving I was born in Texas, raised there, went to school there for 11 years, etc? They led with a Monterey High School yearbook pic from Lubbock. Why don't you take this up with them? The only research you seem capable of doing is making stuff up to suit yourself. But of course talking about tenners keeps people off my papers, which you naturally wish to misdirect away from.

[In reply to Allan Weisbecker] Give me some content to respond to and I will respond to it. All I see is naked envy.

So, don't relax. Be frigid or gay, that is your right. I am not trying to take it from you. It's not hard to know what's true and what isn't? I guess that is why no one knew about all these fakes until I exposed them. But I guess you already knew about Lincoln and Manson and Hitler and Lenin and John of Gaunt and all the rest? If so, why are you here? If you know everything, then why didn't you tell anyone? Where is your website that is so much more interesting than mine? Get lost, you have already exposed yourself, which is ironic since you claim to hate the male gaze.

I HAVE written about 911. See my links page. These people just say whatever they want, despite evidence to the contrary existing right in front of everyone's faces. They will try to tell you it is dark while standing in front of the SUn. I haven't continued to harp on 911 year after year, ignoring everything else, like these bozos do. But I do continue to mention it in newer papers. My opinion has not changed. 911 has been done to death and I try to hit things no one else has. Everyone with an eye open knows 911 was a multiple false flag, etc, but how many know the Lincoln Assassination was fake, for instance.

Gervais is a riot sometimes, I agree, but he is definitely a spook, so watch with care. Especially when he starts going on about Atheism.

If someone wants to make tree diagrams for me, I will insert them [into the genealogies]. I am not leaving them out on purpose, just doing what I think needs to be done.

We just did! [Got to 1000 posts] Drop the confetti and sound the horns!

Before people can do anything, they have to know what is going on. Before they can come together and talk and make plans, they have to know what is going on. No action is possible without knowledge. So this is the first step in any revolution. If you don't know what you are up against, you have no chance of defeating it. You cannot organize or lead people who aren't aware of what is going on around them, or what has happened in recent history. I have tried to talk to well-meaning people around town, but it is pointless. They have no idea how the world works. They want to talk about Trump or Congress or some article in the New York Times or some show they saw on CNN. These people have to be deprogrammed before you even think of asking them to act in any way.

In reply to dovetails [who said it was midnight in OZ]. And what time is it in Neverland?

Yes, Sven, I hated the pink category too, always leaving it for last. Trivia is all pink now. Trivial Pursuit actually got rid of its arts and literature category by 1990, due to lack of demand. Everything except sports and pink then followed suit. IT is also worth looking at the big Jeopardy winners and their bios. They have never done anything with their lives except study for Trivia quizzes. They are basically masters of propaganda. Someone said above that Jeopardy had changed over the years as well, and that is definitely true. Back in the day, it had been modeled on the college bowl, with fairly demanding questions in history, literature, the sciences, and geography. When I was visiting my parents in Austin last November (destroying the house arrest hypothesis), we watched Jeopardy every afternoon. My Mom has been watching for decades. I was shocked at all the fluffy categories, obviously nodding the newer fluffy "educations" people have.

We should hit 1000 posts by 1am local time. That's 1000 posts in just three days. PReTTY impressive folks. Couldn't have done it without you! Thanks to all. We will do a little countdown soon.

I play trivia at a local Brewery. We are the top team, but a lot of the questions leave me empty. I have started calling it propaganda night, instead of trivia night. I am their art, history, literature, and science specialist, but you would be surprised how little of that there is on any given quiz. It is all vidgames, TV, Hollywood, and fake current events. And when they do ask a literature question, it tends to be Harry Potter or Game of Thrones.

Just what we need, 18-wheelers with no one at the wheel. IT will never work, unless they build separate highways for them, in which case they might as well call them trains.

There are better ways to veg out. I also veg out, but not with vidgames. I am a bit touchy on the subject, since our weekly trivia quizzes have been ruined by an excess of vidgame questions. I am about to quit from frustration.

Just send me a check, or some stamps. And don't write on the videogame industry, just destroy your units and move on. I destroyed my TV years ago, which is one reason I have been able to do what I have done. IT is like a heroin addict who can throw away the needles.

For the simplest of my papers, you don't need any math. For others you need trig or algebra. For some you need calculus. Most of them can be understood by someone who was good in highschool maths, up to trig. I explain everything as I go, so reading my papers is sometimes a good way to learn math. This is rare, since most math or physics papers don't explain any of the math. They don't even assign variables. In much of current physics, the variables can't be mechanically assigned, because there is no mechanics. FOr example, quantum mechanics actually has NO mechanics in it. By mechanics I just mean the ability to assign variables to real objects with real motions, and track them through the experiment or the lines of math.

Yeah, if you want to die, buy a self-driving car, that is already being proven. Chess, see my paper on that. If you want to remove a person from a photo, try scissors.

If there was a joke there, I missed it Mihai. I am against carbon tax, although I consider myself an environmentalist. We don't need more taxes we need stricter laws and some enforcement.

Exactly, it takes everyone acting together, which is almost impossible. In smaller countries like Sweden or New Zealand, I think revolution has a better chance. The farmers should start by unionizing and holding meetings. The governors rightly fear a strike from farmers, since that stops everything.

Well, [Quincy] Jones could be telling the truth about one and lying about the other. His comments on the Beatles ring true to me. John was and is a heck of an actor, and he was quite clever in interviews. Paul also had his good points. They fronted the project really well, and they did sing most of it, you can tell that. I don't think they wrote most of the songs. It looks like a committee of professionals. But Sinatra didn't write his songs, either, and no one holds that against him. I like a lot of the songs, but let's admit they have been oversold, like everything else.

I agree about Adorno [writing the Beatles songs]. That is ridiculous.

Looks like we will hit 1000 tonight. Giddyup!

That's our Euro or Russian troll, he is now also Laurentiu and who knows who else.

Thanks David. And thanks for being a real person and signing your name. That is refreshing.

If bicycles started to catch on, Big Oil would buy all the bike companies and trash them in the same way. Which they already do, in a way. Why do you think biking is so anemic here, while being bigger in Europe? Answer: the propaganda against biking is much larger here, including no bike lanes, constant fake letters to the editor about mad bikers, etc.

Tesla MOtors was bought by the oil companies, obviously. I agree battery powered cars are asinine, but big oil wants no competition.

[About giving friends the red pill] Excellent point. People do change, you just have to give them time. Life is long and slow, somewhat like this forum.

Well, don't pat her on the head, but remember the John CUsack movie "say anything". That normally works, if anything will. Just smile and say nice things, stay away from controversial topics for a long time.

Oh, I agree with you there, Alice, and have said so before. Carbon trading and carbon taxes are just another boondoggle and rape of the taxpayer and little guy. We knew that as soon as George Bush signed on to the idea. An oilman should not be in favor of this stuff, but the Bushes are. Taxing farmers for farting cows is among the stupidest things ever initiated in the history of the world. It is all a cover for the real culprits of real pollution: the military and big business. New Zealand is another small country where a revolution would be easier than here. Don't go into your hole, start a tax revolt. YOU should have support from everyone in the country, not just farmers.

That smells right. CHECK out Pete's [Townshend] nose! If he doesn't look Jewish, nobody does.

THEN the kids should revolt. THEIR parents should encourage them not to do their homework and to fail all their exams. Then what? THE State can't take away everyone's children. Where are they going to keep them? THE same applies here. There are pretty obvious solutions, but it requires that people stop being pussies.

Some good points there. ALthough according to Quincy Jones, they [the Beatles] stunk early on too. He said they were the worst musicians ever.

ANYone pushing reality as a simulation is a spook. Period. And how can that be positive?

See my paper on Lagrange Points.

YOU are right about the word anarchy, Lloyd. No one wants anarchy and they know that. It is like the "dictatorship of the proletariat". Do think anyone was ever in favor of such a thing?

If you wish to talk to me, just be yourself and be nice. The rest of this crap is unnecessary.

OWS is controlled opposition, of course.

Yeah, it's been fun for me also. I am not completely anti-social yet. Welcome to the madhouse. Or should I say, the respite from the madhouse.

But I liked the question about Janus. Keep setting me up for my charge field and my anger will dissipate.

Thanks Philip. I agree with most of this, though I have had a bit of luck with online dating. That is where I met the Quebecois Cirque du Soleil girl, and also a later short-term girlfriend. But I agree it is like a needle in a haystack. IT reminds me of looking for book deals on Ebay. They are there, but it takes a huge amount of work. YOU have to scan through hundreds of pages of old books to find one great deal.

Yes, and then Josh outed you as our troll. You forget who you are dealing with. My brain works.

Thanks Donovan, I do what I can. Yes, quite isolated, though some of that by choice. I could live in a larger city, but I like the country. I hate cars and smog and tall buildings. Denver now gives me the heebies. Can't even stand Albuquerque. I have enough fighting cars here on my bicycles.

Yah, and where are our flying cars? Airplane tech stalled in about 1950. How does that make any sense?

Well, this one was planned to last several days. I promised to be here for a few days, and I keep my promises.

Why not? It is just a variation of the Trojans or C-orbit asteroids, and again proves the charge field. Solo gravity can't explain Janus coming up behind Epi and then the latter shooting off ahead. Charge can. I seem to remember Laurentiu was our troll, but what the hell.

He [Weisbecker] wanted in the last one [conference], I think that is the one you were at, so yes. I am not going to name any more names here, but I have my eyes on several people.

I just noticed that the article that comes up for POM on that search is from March, being the Iconoclasts article. It is not the recent slander. Josh's piece above is ranked middle of the 3rd page, but is dated 6 days ago, so it will be rising a lot when the next spiders pass. The POM slander pieces aren't ranked on the top ten pages, indicating no one is reading them or even clicking on them. The only traffic they are getting is probably from my response. I will be told that was the whole plan, but if so, I am fine with it. This has been a PR bonanza for me no matter how you look at it.

Here's something interesting. Go do a general Google search on "Miles Mathis Genealogy". YOU would think that hit piece would rank pretty high, right? No. Top ranked is my paper on Hitler. Second is my own paper on my genealogy, the response to POM. Third is my updates page, fourth is my paper on Obama. POM doesn't show up until the middle of the second page, and if they didn't use my name, they wouldn't show up in the top 100 pages.

I didn't think we would get to 1000 tonight, but we might. Especially if the fake Tokarski keeps posting.

For the record, I don't think Tokarski is writing that stuff. The "big boys" have come in and taken over. It has their pawprints all over it, being straight out of psychological operations.

I do have a lot of bicycles. Eleven in the house right now, most of them for sale. I restored them myself with cheap parts from ebay. I am swamped with bicycles, books, and kittens. That much is true.

Keep writing POM. YOU can see the numbers over here, and the small donations keep coming in.

Yeah, remember that one of the prosecuting attorneys under Bugliosi was fired for calling Atkins the Sarah Bernhardt of her time. He revealed a bit too much there.

It hasn't needed to go black since it was all fiction. Kind of like the stories over at POM. AI is a similar fiction. Another fiction is the golf cart POM now says I have over here. There is no golf cart here and never has been. Why not claim I have a Mars Rover here, or a row of ICBMs, or a tunnel to the center of the Earth? I can now see why some think POM is being paid to build me up rather than tear me down, since that is the real outcome of the project. I sometimes wonder that myself, when I look closely at how poorly done the blackwashing is. But honestly, I think this is just a larger version of the attempted character assassination at RatWiki. These people aren't trying to build me up or send me more traffic, that is just the outcome of the backfire. They are just that bad at their jobs. Given what the US has become, does that really surprise anyone?

You haven't convinced me. Tesla motors is an obvious attempt to blackwash him by tying him to this fakery at SpaceX.

I didn't know that, very sad. The Swedes really should revolt. It is a small country, not spread out like the US, making a revolution much easier. They would only need to take Stockholm and Goteburg. THEY should toss the bankers and write a new Constitution. Can they homeschool in Norway?

I'm back. SOmeone above mentioned Phi Beta Kappa. Seems like very few people understand what that is. It isn't a fraternity or secret order. You pay no dues and there are no meetings. I haven't heard from or met another Phi since college, and then only at the awards dinner. It basically just means you had a high GPA, above 3.9 or something, and met a few other criteria, though I don't even know what they are. In my head it is just another tag, like summa cum laude. It is something to put on the old resume. I actually turned it down, since I didn't want to pay $40 for the awards dinner. I said if it was an award, they should pay for the fucking dinner. Who pays for an award? My Mom got mad and sent in the $40 without telling me. I did show up to keep my Mom from having a cow, though the food was garbage.

Since the trolls obviously just read that, what Josh means is that someone is trying to post as me here under a similar name. But I remain Mathis der Maler and only Mathis der Maler, with a purple sign and a four-dot domino in the middle. I am also leaving for about half an hour, so remain vigilant.

Or Lithuanian. Those ladies are hot.

The reason POM keeps publishing is that they see me here, not writing new papers. A tiny win, I admit. But they need to divert me for more than just three days, since I will soon be back to work. Again, go for the beautiful Russian spy.

I had a recent similar moment with my trivia team. There was a current events question about Macron calling someone delicious. I said, it doesn't matter, he is gay, and so is Trump. Dead silence. I said c'mon, didn't you see the recent mainstream report of Trump with his hand on Macron's knee. What straight politicians grab each other's knees. And Macron was outed long ago, the French press has been reporting on his known lover for years. Plus he is outwardly flamboyant and has that fake wife for a beard. My team changed the subject while shooting me dirty looks. I guess they are very invested in Trump being a ladies man. They claim to hate him, but when someone says something that goes against their mainstream indoctrination, they rally.

LOve it! Yes, Tiger definitely wears pink on other days.

Also remember that Weispecker tried to weasel into one of my conferences, like TOKarski. But after talking to him on the phone for a few minutes, I could tell he was trouble, and told him he wasn't welcome. So that is how his project started.

So they are already trying to blackwash our numbers here. Predictable. How will they whitewash their own lack of numbers? I would be interested to hear what cult figure has ever done what I have done? ANYone? 1000 papers of serious and readable research on a variety of topics, including the highest levels of physics. Please send me to Manson's or Hubbard's similar library of research, for instance.

There are definitely writing teams behind all the top bands, then and now.

Well, up to now no one was promoting me, so I had to do it myself, didn't I? I don't actually like the job, and am fairly quiet in real life. Hard to believe, I know, but true. Those at my conferences can confirm it. After this outpouring, maybe I will be able to sit back a bit and let other people promote me. The only problem: no one here is a publisher or media head. And I am still up against all the psyop units worldwide. So if I continue to act the bear, don't be surprised. It is eat or be eaten, so I am going to continue feasting on these losers.

Attacking my hair. Amazing. Anything else about me they envy? Or I should say, is there anything about me they DON'T envy, and won't admit to envying in public in the most pathetically transparent way. Foot shooting has never reached such an art form. These guys should be modern artists, existing behind Plexiglas in some museum somewhere.

Not that much is known of Tesla. He published very little. He has been slandered and is probably still being slandered. I haven't seen any big red flags on him. But I haven't looked too much, I admit. I haven't really hit him yet.

I have stated that rule myself, without knowing someone had previously named it a Zal Rule. Yes, Intel uses real previous events, but always crushes them beyond recognition.

The revolution has already started. You are part of it. This is it.

There aren't any, besides mine. Sorry. If you mean learn mainstream stuff [physics], they are all about the same. If you mean learn the subjects as they should be taught, of course there are no books available.

Yes to homeschooling.

Dammegard is a spook, in my opinion.

Someone who didn't read my paper [on pi], not even the first paragraph.

[Uggs] Terrible for your feet, I hear, squishy with no arch support. Of course I have never worn one, so I don't really know.

Thanks Runar, I am sure you are right about Palme, it sounds very plausible. Glad the truth is getting out in Sweden as well. Not surprised, the Swedes are very smart people, in my experience. They must have to drug the Swedes pretty heavily to keep the Vikings from revolting.

Well, I have never had that experience, thank God. I like to think it is because I have very good eyes. I don't just look at a woman's face and tits, like most guys. My buddies used to kid me, because I would say something like, look how beautiful her hands are, or her feet, or her shoulders, or her knees. My best friend would reply, "She has feet?" Which reminds me of the Seinfeld show on man hands. He is dating a woman with man hands. Many guys don't look at hands, or anything else. I notice "details", which my readers will not be surprised to hear. When you look closely at hands and other details, trannies don't fool you. With drugs and makeup, they can do a lot with the face, but the rest is far harder to disguise. Plus, I have always tended to chase the smaller women, under 5'5". The fairy princesses. The trannies don't fit into that category, since they tend to be much larger, for obvious reasons.

Anyway, you might think women would like to be around a guy who can appreciate their finer points, but I have not found that to be the case. Even the most beautiful are so self-conscious they don't want to think you are looking too closely at them. They can't stand still and be admired. Many don't even like to look in the mirror, since all they see are faults. The feminists blame that on our patriarchal culture, but I have come to realize that isn't it at all. It is the women's magazines that do it, and peer pressure from the sisters. We guys just want them to relax and let us admire them.

I agree. I don't think there are 7 billion people in the world. But of course it is very hard to prove. It looks like another scare tactic, on the face of it. However, some areas are definitely overpopulated, there is no question. But outside of the big cities, the US definitely is not. Even in the northeast, you fly into New York or something, and it just forest forever. Pollution is a greater problem than population, in most places. One big military base can pollute several counties. Or big factories can pollute the air and water for hundreds of square miles.

OK, we are on page six of comments now, let's wind it back up. Where are my Euro readers? This is their shift.

OK, fine, but I am not ready to admit I know nothing about beautiful women. The most beautiful women I have seen have not turned out to be dudes.

Not a chance in hell. Watch old video of her [Sharon Tate]. Very feminine, including her voice. Trannies can fool you in clothes, but not in teenie bikinis, and not with their voices. Watch the youtube video of her in a bikini washing her dogs. Woof!

Are moccasins trendy now? I wasn't aware of it. A few hippies wear them here, but not the trend-setters. Here they still seem to be stuck on the appropriately named UGGs. It is all tights and UGGs. Or thousand dollar leather boots.

Maybe Josh—as a non-practicing Jew—can tell us why educated Jews have given up the faith. I had always supposed it was for the same reason Christians had, but my old suppositions have proved to be worth nothing, I admit. So I won't speculate. I would be happy to hear Josh speculate, however.

OK, I grabbed a beer and another piece of pizza, so I am ready for another hour or so. I am drinking a Paulaner double bock. The Europeans really do have much better beer than us. I can't stand the hoppy AMERICAN beers. Bruges was great for beers. The only thing they do better than chocolate is beer.

Haven't studied the history of circumcision, but although I am, I would not do it to my son. Kellogg was probably Jewish, yes. It is very widespread in Europe, so I don't know what you are talking about. The entire ruling class of Europe is Jewish. Unless you mean circumcision. One reason is that Euros like to get naked on the beach and elsewhere, and you don't want a circumcised weenie on the beaches. If it gets cold, you shrink up to nothing. Nobody likes that! If you are uncircumcised, he have your own little coat, so you get far less shrinkage. And yes, I am completely serious. ALthough there are other reasons. A far larger percentage of AMERICANS have Jewish "blood" than is admitted, especially in the upper classes. I believe the genealogies you can buy hide that as well.

Leather is the answer for you. Assuming you aren't vegan. Get some leather-soled moccasins.

I just took a look also, though I can't follow spoken French. I can read baby French, but that is about it. I am glad to see he led with good pics of me instead of bad, which indicates he is not trying to slander me. So that is good.

Thanks, stick around and post some more, make the party a little more lively. It hit a lull last hour but seems to be picking up. The Europeans should be waking up, so we can expect them back. Except that many will be working on a Monday.

Well, except for the "She was a dude, man", you are right. [Me nonconfirming Sharon Tate as a man.]

Thanks, I am saving it [finishing my LOTR sequel] for my old age.

It is not certain, just a hunch. He [Dave McGowan] looks like controlled opposition, maybe aimed right at my readers. Curious that as soon as I began my big rise, he was gone. He was a good writer, though, I will always give him that. Very entertaining.

I don't remember ever thinking you were suspicious. Or no more suspicious than everyone else. Engineers have found a place in my heart over the years. They tend to know how things work much better than physicists. Engineers can't live on complete fakery.

Well, there is quite a bit. See my writings page for links to old novels, short stories, childrens books, and an LOTR sequel.

Thanks Ben. My ex girlfriend really loved that one [the Lennon paper]. She actually helped me work on it a bit, chasing down a few details. She was scared by the Manson and Kennedy papers, but she wasn't scared by that one for some reason. She was fascinated. AND convinced.

Wow, impressive. You must be so proud of yourself. Everyone here agrees you are a very big man. If you say nice things under someone else's name, they talk to you. That is quite a feat. I begin to understand now. In real life, when you talk to people in your own name, they don't listen, am I right?

For the record, I have no connections to ChrisSpivey, don't know him, and did not "write for him". He simply republished a piece from my site, which I can't stop him from doing. Nor do I wish to. As long as people leave my name on my work and don't edit it, I allow free dissemination. I happen to believe a lot of places use that freedom to try to surround my work with noise. But I don't think they succeed. So there it is.

Oh, it's not a buzzkill. But like I said at the beginning of the party, I can't answer questions that require a new paper to answer, which that one does. Plus, I put everything I know into my papers, so there isn't much left. If I haven't published it, I don't know it.

I'm still trying to figure out the life of a professional troll. Don't these people have lives? This is what they DO? They insert themselves into other people's parties and spread dissension? And this is a career? Even worse, Shadow tells us this is what he does FOR FUN! I don't believe it, but just imagine if that is true. What do you do for fun, Donald. . . say. . . Lipshitz. Me? Well, I swing cats by their tails, corral bugs into corners, yell things at children at the mall, oh, and I crash parties online pretending to be people's friends and try to fool them into hating each other. What? Well, in that case, I guess we should try to keep Shadow here as long as we can, in order to protect the cats, bugs and children.

Hi Jim, you came in during another troll alert. About the time Josh goes to sleep, the trolls come out to ply their wares, which no one is buying. They think they can't be banned. We have some fun with them and then they go home to lick their wounds and collect their paychecks.

The fact is, a lot of readers came here to see me kick you. I can't disappoint them, can I.

You really think you proved your point? To whom? Nobody believes anything you say. Given that you have as many IPs as you need and are playing multiple characters, the only point you have proved is that you are a spook. Therefore, you proved MY point. But please, keep posting. Become ten characters if you like and we will just drive around you. We will kick you when it amuses us or if we get bored, as we have been doing. Every house needs a beanbag chair and a punching clown. Glad you are good at computers. Everyone needs to be good at something, and you certainly aren't good at writing, arguing, or scoring points in any other way. Pissed again yet?

Hicks was not Jones.

There is no eternal recurrence.

I don't know. I am still working on it, as you know. I assume it [World Wars] was mostly a moneymaking scheme, used to drain the treasuries. But there were probably other levels to it. This is not really the place for such a huge question.

I did a piece on another site? Could you tell us what that is, so I can confirm or nonconfirm it? [I nonconfirmed it, since I don't write for other sites.]

Oh god, here they come again. Round two. What, did you hear Josh was asleep? He offered me banning privileges but I said no. We'll just ignore them this time. But thanks for coming and adding to our numbers Shadows and pals. We'll just get to 1000 that much faster. You're not a troll, though Josh proved you were, and now you say you aren't psyop. OK. See if you can get anyone to bite on your butt. If they do, we will know them as well.

Yes, we now see that it was nothing more than DallasGoldBuggery. I should have come down harder on POM from the beginning, I guess. But I was busy and working on other things, and wrongly supposed POM would fade away on its own. I did warn about the overlays things, though. And Mark was a bit more subtle than DGB. He took the time to hook some people before diverting into the bushes. His coming to my conference and paying me $400 was also smart, since it diverted my attention. A person like me can't imagine any agency would pay $400 as a pre-oiling for a project. But of course that is lunch money for these guys. And he wasn't the only agent in my conferences, as it turns out.

I haven't studied it [Fomenko's revised chronology] closely, but I am very skeptical. Obviously, I think history needs a rewrite, but probably not that one.

We're all entitled to an opinion. ANYway, I am having a pizza and settling in for the evening, kittens at my feet (my ankles are being shredded, but that is the cost of kittens). Grab a beer or a cup of coffee or whatever turns you on and stick around for more fireworks. Last night was a barn burner, though I think Josh and I have shown the trolls they have no hope here. What other forum can you say that about? Have you ever felt more protected? I have a 70s softrock spook band—which I will not name—playing in the background, since the nostalgia is hard to kill. Besides, the music is good, whoever wrote it with whatever intention. The spook projects have been backfiring from the beginning, and this is just one more example of that.

Glad to hear my Goldbach Conjecture paper mentioned. ONLY a few are able to penetrate it, I guess. It wouldn't make a top 1000 list, I am afraid.

Since you mention Ling, I hope you have read my two papers on Gerald Pollack, where I talk about Ling.

I just wanted to point out for the record this is the first and only time I have rallied "my troops". Which puts the lie to the whole "Team Mathis" thing. There is no Team Mathis. Yes, some of my readers support me in forums, which is great, but I don't send them there or manage them. They do that on their own bat. But my enemies have to downplay the beauty of that, since they realize that self-motivated readers are much more powerful than paid zombies (which is what my enemies are). It is also worth pointing out that in this first-time troop rallying, all we did was have a party. I have not passed out a list of goals or projects, or assigned tasks to anyone. In fact, I led the party by recommending (recommending, not ordering) that my readers NOT go to POM to respond. I recommended you let that project rot on the vine. I felt it required a brief response from me, just to mollify any twitchy readers, but beyond that it refutes itself. A party was the best reply, so let's keep it going for a few days. A lot of people seem to check my site daily, which is pretty amazing if you think about it (my actual numbers must be very high), but not everyone does. So we have to let this thing run on for a while to be sure everyone has a chance to chime in. If I am here they are more likely to tune in.

Yes, I am of course happy with all the work you guys are doing [diagramming the nucleus], although it isn't always perfect. We are pushing toward the right model, which is the important thing. And yes, it is nice to see "my troops". See post at the current end of the line for more on that.

Best point you made is in the last paragraph. I don't think anyone has even one nuke. The hysteria, like the nukes, is totally manufactured to keep the front pages off of any real news, to keep everyone scared, and to suck from the treasuries. That's about it.

If you are starting from the beginning, that is fine, there is a lot of good reading here. But if you are looking for me, I am parked at the end of the last page. That is where to find me.

As I said, I am going to be here all evening, so let's keep the party rolling. 500 comments is nothing, let's go for 1000. We went over 400 in the first evening alone. I am answering almost all questions, except those that require a new paper.

Thanks Annabelle. But "Rebecca" is long gone. Josh found out she was a troll, existing here under multiple names, including Mendeleev, and banned her. She may come back, though, so help me be on the lookout.

Welcome to all the new party arrivers! I wanted to follow up on something I said yesterday. I was talking about walking barefoot in the grass, which I just did this afternoon as part of general therapy.

Plastic and rubber shoes block charge, so you don't get as energized from the charge field as you should. So you should hike barefoot if you can. Your feet will toughen up pretty fast. But those into yoga should also consider that yoga mats in the west are commonly plastic or rubber. This is counterproductive as well. Best to do your yoga in the grass with no mat, or just a blanket. There are other mats you can use in the winter inside, but avoid rubber and especially plastic. Plastic has no place in yoga. If you don't do yoga, you can apply this same advice to whatever you do. Grounding is a real thing, though it doesn't have much to do with electrons. It has to do with charge, which is photons. The body is a charge engine, like everything else in this universe.

I would like to out all of them, but since I spent no time over there [POM], I don't even know those people. So it is up to you guys. Anyone who wants to send me an anonymous tip can do so. But I will need some evidence. Outing agents is not doxxing, it is just self-defense. These people aren't even supposed to be working domestically, especially not running projects against US citizens.

I am here again and the browser is open, I just added a few comments. But I think I will go for a walk in the sunshine while I still can. I will be back soon and will spend much of the evening here, if you are looking for me. Thanks for coming to the party. I think we can call it a smashing success.

I don't actually have a first edition LOTR. I have an old edition, but it is from the late 60s. I do collect first editions, and I have some nice ones, but LOTR isn't one of them. Most of mine tend to be from the 19th century.

My latest belief is that they [names like Hitler and Hiller] all come from Hillel.

The second two are too big for this party, but I will answer the first. Yes, I also like dogs. I used to like them more than cats, but now I like cats. Cats tear up your house less, which is good for an artist. And I don't have a proper fenced yard.

It's troubling that no official historians are here? Are you joshing us?

I am off to bed. I will be back tomorrow afternoon. Ya'll keep the trolls at bay without me, y'hear.

Welcome Daniel. For those who just got here, Operation Chaos is alive and well on this forum. Josh just proved Mendeleev and Rebecca were the same troll, running a con, and WildWind and lamdisappointed were the same troll, running a separate con, though the two may have been working together. They have been booted. You can see the exchanges above, where they kept saying they weren't trolls. These people aren't private trolls. They come from psychological operations units worldwide and are being paid to be here. Which is just more confirmation of the entire anti-Mathis campaign that brought us all here. We are celebrating a big win, but the fight goes on. They will probably return under different names, but they are quite easy for me to spot. It takes only one or two posts.

It's 2:30am here, so I probably won't make it to the number 400. But what party wouldn't be complete without talk of serial killers and mass murderers?

I don't know anything about NXIVM, and have never heard of it, but the odds are already very good it is fake. As for HBO, Netflix, etc. they are just responding to my outing of all serial killers, trying to nail the old nails back in. But I already pulled them out and kicked them out the door, so that isn't going to work. Therefore they probably need to create some new ones to take their place. So we may expect to see a new spate of these things, to complement the faked mass murders. If I were you, I wouldn't believe any new story that involves serial killers, mass murders, sex trafficking, pedophilia, multiple rapes, long kidnappings, or sexual harassment. I don't. It is all part of operation chaos, which was not stopped in the 70s or 80s, but which actually has continued to accelerate every decade.

Don't buy plastic or rubber soled shoes, which is most shoes now. That's one of the reasons they sell the plebes such shoes, it disempowers them, literally. Leather is OK, unless you are vegan.

He [Wildwind] wasn't also Rebecca, was he? [Yes]

Daniel, thanks for being here and putting up a nice post. Did you see the money laundering paper? It ties into the payment function.

Yes, charge is moving up all the time, so there are a million uses for it. Go outside and run in the grass barefoot. That is immediately healing, since you are getting free charge therapy. You don't need to live in a pyramid to get it.

Ah, what I expected. WildWind is really Gravatar--no such user.

You're very welcome. Which one was your fave?

You already blew it Wang, so just deal with it. You don't come to a party, accuse the host of being fake while he is standing right next to you, and then say "just kidding". Would that pass at a real party? No. So it doesn't pass here.

Thanks, you are our second peep. Stick around and peep some more. We are going for 300 before I clock out.

Welcome CLint, although I am not sure what you are saying. Sounds like you may have already thrown back a couple. No matter. All are welcome. . . except trolls. Curious that your name changed in just four minutes.

Europeans are good enough for anything, baby.

Past midnight west coast I guess. Don't we have an Californians to keep the party rolling? C'mon people.

Josh, could you toss WildWind, he is getting on everyone's nerves. Or at least mine. He has curdled my eggnog several times.

Whew, looks like the trolls are thinning out. For a moment there they had me alone and surrounded. I felt like Gandalf battling the wargs. I singed every treetop from here to Santa Fe.

Was Feynman a Talmud scholar? I sort of doubt it. I seem to remember that he repudiated it in "Surely You're Joking". He embraced irrationality because it was all he was capable of. He couldn't solve the problems with mechanics, so he embraced magic. That is a common human reaction, not peculiar to Jews.

Thanks for coming, but don't knock the genealogy research. It has taken me places I could never gone without it. Of course I don't mean my genealogy, I mean Ben Franklin's genealogy, etc. And how much did the family relationships help blow the Lincoln event, for instance?

Thank you Miriam for showing up to our little shindig and posting something. See there? She said I was Intense, passionate. She didn't show up expecting me to be a turtle.

My opinion is you are a troll who I asked to leave. You should make your exit quietly before Josh tosses you.

It is not a bogus website. If you email me and start accusing me of being men only, I will not respond politely there either. If you act like a troll you can expect to be treated as one. WildWind likes you though, which is a good sign.

He thought from reading my papers that I was downy little bird, and he is shocked and saddened it isn't so. Boohoo. Another transparent gambit from the psyop playbook. Let's see how many we can spot this week. 1) I am too weak, 2) I am too strong, 3) I am too gay, 3) I am not gay enough, 4) I love women too much, 5) I don't love them enough, 6) I am too Jewish, 7) I am not Jewish enough, 8) I spend too much time on forums, 9) I don't spend enough time on forums, 10) I drink too much, 11) I don't drink enough, 12) I am too tall, 13) I am too short, 14) I am too old, 15) I am too young, 16) I have too many fans, 17) I don't have any fans, 18) my Google stats are unbelievably high, 19) I am only read by my mother, 20) I am too good to be true, 21) my stuff is garbage. And many more.

Ah, a real person is still here. Bless you Marty. Comment all you like, we are glad to have you here, Buddy.

Then why are you asking such a question? Do you really think I am ignoring women on purpose? If they aren't showing up, is that my fault? Ask me a sensible question and I will answer it, but don't drop in and accuse us of being men-only. And how do you expect me to recognize anyone with all these monikers?

What happened to Ginger? Is she off making a coconut brassiere with Mary Ann and the Professor?

Thanks to the new trolls, we just passed 200. Let's go for 300 tonight! This is so fun, kittens on my feet and trolls to swat buzzing my head. What a grand time! Who could ask for more?

THE only thing that is compromised is you. You have already outed yourself, so be off, Rebecca of Lyingbrook Farm.

Thanks, that was good timing. Mathis der Maler is a famous symphony by Hindemith, meaning Mathis the Painter. I don't want to talk about chronology here, it is too big a subject for a party. I was angry at those using the PSAT business against me, but I thought you were one of them. I am famous for being aggressive against trolls, so no real person is surprised to find me aggressive here. If I were too sweet, they might be suspicious, but not otherwise.

And yet another troll arrives almost simultaneously. What are the odds? No one is commenting over at POM, so I guess all you people decided to come over here? You are about to see what aggressive really looks like.

OK, so the newly arrived Rebecca also doesn't know how to email me and ask me if I am here.

OK, you are also a troll. With a little head. Go away. No one is interested in your games here. Wang obviously called in one of his buds. No one is suspicious.

He respects me? He said I was a fake while I was I was standing right there. You must have missed that part.

I am only aggressive to trolls. If you aren't a troll, you are welcome. If you are a troll, go away.

Yeah, I see the 19, you are probably right on that. Never seen Passengers. They don't do the twin paradox much, although Planet of the Apes is based on it. Easier to do time travel.

PHysics teachers at that level are some of my best readers. Like the engineers, they know more than enough to know what I am talking about, but they haven't been indoctrinated with the post-doc thumbscrews.

We just need a few more peeps tonight to break 200.

Cool, our first peep. Love it.

Although. . . I still find it curious that Calgacus weighed all I have done against a PSAT footnote and found that enough to go into the anti-Mathis camp. I don't really understand that weighing.

According to the time stamps, a lot of my readers are Europeans. Makes this party difficult to maintain. A sort of jetlag party. I will be here until the wee hours, working on other stuff but checking in pretty often, so if you get lonely, I will leave the light on for you. About the time I go to sleep Josh will be waking up.

INvite him [OJSimpson] and tell him to bring Denise Simpson.

Yes, the twin stuff was crap from the get-go, almost as bad as DallasGoldbug. THE only thing decent I ever saw Tokarski do was the John Denver paper, but even it was pretty slim.

I do not have anyone giving me inside tips. My readers sometimes later point me to something I missed initially, but the first round of research is just me. I leave open the possibility I am getting help from the Muses, but no humans are dropping things into my lap. I wouldn't mind having some inside sources, but so far I haven't got them. On my science site, I do have a couple of insiders who pass me scuttlebutt, but that is science politics. They tell me watercooler stuff. They do not help me write my papers. Tonight I am updating my Washington paper with Josh's research. Doing that in the downtime here. I find it amusing Josh is so willing to talk about noses.

Thanks Russ. My numbers are already much bigger than they admit. See the rankings on my science site, critics.pdf. I am sure the real rankings on my art site are about the same, or higher, though better hidden. They know my truth papers have a much better chance of going viral than my science papers, so they sit on them pretty heavily. But we see the real effects nonetheless, as in when the Daily Mail reports on my Hawking research and two months later he is "dead".

Chomsky and Twain were hard to lose. OH, and Crowley. Just kidding on that last one.

I am a native Texan, but don't have a Texas accent, except a bit when I talk to my Dad on the phone, I am told.

I have hop up and down moments in many many papers. But that Tate paper was crucial for me also. I had already written the Kennedy paper, but even so I was not prepared for what I found in the Manson event. The Lincoln paper was another hopper for me, as was the Salem paper. The Nicole Simpson sister thing was a hop, and the Lennon paper was a big hop for my girlfriend at the time. The Beat poets was an early one. After that, I was less easy to startle. On the science site, the avr paper was a hopper, as were the ones on the Lagrangian, and on unlocking G. Figuring out Technetium was a hop. A big one. The lemma paper was a hop. I have hopped a lot.

[WW saying my writing style in comments didn't match my writing style in the papers] Am I writing a paper right now? Bozo.

My email is open in another tab, if anyone else wishes to ask if this is really me. Or we can check my mole patterns later, after the party gets really rowdy.

Wow, it didn't take you long Wang. You are exposed as a troll. You might as well head for the exit with your pal WildWind. It is true I keep the swearing to a minimum on my site, but this is a party, Buddy, and I am a bit elated. Big wins tend to do that to you, you know. It is sort of like the locker room after the Super Bowl.

Be careful Wang, you are exposing yourself. Why don't you just send me an email and ask me if I am here now? Would that be too logical for your little head?

[WW saying Mathis der Maler was not me] YEah, you are the only one who thinks that. Why are you still here, by the way? The exit sign has your name on it. You aren't fooling anyone. Gee, that sounded a lot like me, didn't it? You know another way they know it is me? I bet you don't. Because I have a heavy finger on the caps key, so I often double a cap, like this: FUck off. They have emailed with me extensively, so they have seen that in my emails. Now you know.

[In reply to a call for pizza] Great, no anchovies for me. However, it is never too early for music. I am playing the Zombies, in honor of you know who.

POM is piece of mindful, the ones who attacked me. The party is in their honor. They made all this possible with their generous financial support, due to increased donations.

That is why I replied [to POM's first libel]. I have heard from a couple of people now who were almost fooled by the genealogy post. It didn't occur to them to try to verify any of it with a simple search. Also good to see that Calgacus thinks some clarification was made on the PSAT manufactured problem, though I don't see how there ever was one. I snapped at him in email, thinking he was one of them, but possibly I was wrong. This post seems level headed to me.

Oh. Well POM won't last much longer either, or it will survive only like Hermon's and Weispecker's and the RatDik's do, with Intel/Google listing support and no real traffic.

Actually, concerning Jim Marrs, just read his Wiki page. That should do it. Note that he taught a course on the JFK assassination for 30 years, but apparently never saw any of the stuff I did the first time I looked.

Those questions are too big for here Oli, send me an email. And we are not bickering. What I am doing is called self-defense. A few recommended I ignore the latest libel, but I could see that wasn't the right thing to do. It was better to call attention to the enemy and engage him. I am glad I did, since not a single arrow of his stuck, while the enemy is plugged like a porcupine. The front porch of POM now looks like that (fake) picture of Nicole Simpson, with blood running down the sidewalk. Pity them, for they know exactly what they do.

Welcome new ones! It is BYOB, so grab a cold one from the frig and keep coming back. I will be in and out for many days. I can't just sit here, of course, but I will keep this tab open. My new comments will be sprinkled all over, and I know it isn't easy to find new comments when they come in this fast, but there it is. We do our best.

BTW, I have heard POM is reopening comments. I recommend no one go there. Let them hear nothing but their own rasping breaths and the sub-basement ventilation at Langley. If you have a response to anything, post it here instead. THE sooner their traffic goes to zero, the sooner we will be rid of them.

Well email me and tell me what they are. Despite what the trolls say, I make corrections all the time, and some of them come from readers. Plus, 2 or 3 mistakes isn't much, in an opus as large as mine.

Cool. I guess Josh can cut them down with the best of them. He doesn't need me as a bouncer, does he?

I just checked and POM is still up, so I don't know what Maria is talking about. Tokarski still seems to be kidnapped, as his posts don't appear to be written by him. They are claiming an arrow has hit a target, but haven't told us what arrow that is. I have patted myself down and haven't found it. I do know my donations have gone up, so maybe that is the arrow they are talking about. Hey guys, shoot more arrows, please!

Flat Earth? Really? You're actually trying to peddle that here? Shoo fly shoo. Go back to your pals at SpaceX and tell them you failed. . . miserably. You have not one potential listener here.

And don't forget Gunderson's link to ANthony Hilder. Hilder=Hiller=...you guessed it, Hitler

Also remember that I have written recently (and before that) about not liking the "shorn vagina". All my nudes are au naturel, in other words, hairy. So ask yourself this: does that fit the profile of pedophilia? Not at all. Would a pedophile complain that new porn is shaved?

Tell me who they are and I will out them myself. YOu know where to reach me.

And remember guys, they have a porn profile on each of us. They joke about that in the movies, but they really do. That is why most of the porn is free, you know. This is Intel we are dealing with. So they know exactly what I like. They know it isn't guys or little girls. I didn't have to tell them Veronica Lake, above, they already know that. They know what hair color, eye color, waist size, hip size, breast size, shoe size and hat size I prefer, down to the nearest centimeter. I actually encourage them to release the data.

Yeah, all this stuff is libel, but how do you sue Intel? HOwever, if any attorney wants to take this one on a contingency basis, I am willing to listen. I won't spend any of my own time on it, but if someone wants to make us both some money, it suits me.

Because I can read and comprehend the English language. You are both obvious spooks, so hit the bricks. Your work here is done.

THIS is as easy to refute as the rest. If I had "been caught" doing anything of the sort, I would be on publicly available sex offender lists. I'm not. Ooh, but I know, I have admitted thinking my cats are beautiful, why don't they claim I am into bestiality? They have as much evidence for that as anything else they are saying. Or, I have admitted liking volleyball. Why don't they claim I have a volleyball fetish, like Tom Hanks in CastAway?

Lofcaudio and WildWind have outed themselves as trolls. But you should demand some consistency from POM, at least. Am I gay or do I like little girls? Do gays lust after little girls? I wasn't aware of that. Wouldn't that contradict the definition of gay?

It will help if she looks like Veronica Lake

Looks like the trolls have finally arrived, although they are being subtle. I see I have been accused of being a pedophile and Satan. Not surprised. This is also standard Intel MO, right out of the playbook. I guess next they will pay some women to claim I grabbed their asses, except that would conflict with the gay claim and the pedophile claim. Maybe they can pay some young boys to say I grabbed their weenies. No, that won't work because it conflicts with the naked girls on my site. Oh, what will they do? I suggest they send a pretty Russian spy to divert with me constant sex. That might actually work for a while.

Hey everyone, it's me Miles, thanks for showing up! I almost got a tear in my eye from some of these early comments. I have called for a party, so hopefully some more people will be dropping in this weekend and in the coming weeks. Let's try to make it a little more festive, since we have a lot to celebrate. I will try to be less of a bear and more of a teddybear here, though the trolls are still not welcome. Discussion is welcome, lies and spinning are not. Josh is busy with his kids today, but he will be back soon. I will tend to be here a lot late in the day, checking in, but don't look for me in the mornings (US time).